

Don't Rob Calves of Essential Food

First Milk Necessary For Proper Development

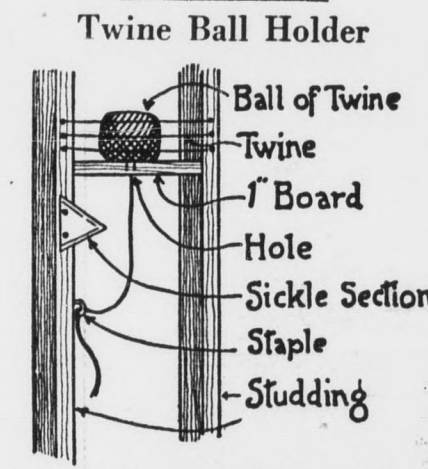

Nature intended that the calves should get all the colostrum (first milk) because this colostrum is 10 times as rich in protective substances as normal milk, the dairy cattle committee of the American Veterinary Medical association recently reported.

Unfortunately, the dairyman has interfered with nature to such an extent that few calves get enough colostrum to meet this need. It becomes necessary to feed vitamins in concentrated, or even in pure form. Vitamin A deficiency in a calf causes watery eyes, a cough, pneumonia and scours. Vitamin B deficiency leads to flabby muscles and digestive stagnation. Vitamin C is needed for the proper function of the guard cells in the intestine.

While some dairymen have tried methods of raising a calf without allowing it enough colostrum, they have produced weaker calves at a greater cost by substituting certain "patent" panaceas.

Instead of following this practice every effort should be made to encourage the calf to secure all of the "first milk" possible.

Success of chemical killing of weeds gives promise that this method will continue to grow in popularity. Michigan State college has found that dilute sulfuric acid may be used in onion to eliminate 75 per cent of the hand labor ordinarily used. Use of oils and other materials in carrots, has met with considerable success.

Hogs' Health Can Be Aided by Use of DDT

The pigpens as well as the pigs themselves get DDT applications to stop the fly nuisance.

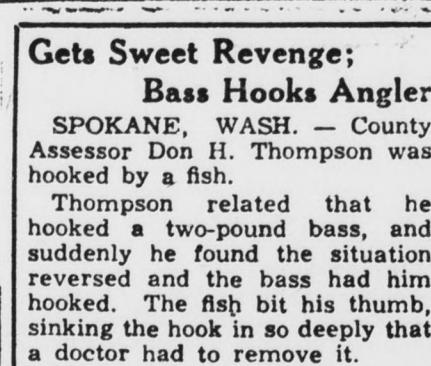

The outstanding advantages of DDT would appear to be (1) its convenience of application and (2) its lethal action on bloodsucking species, such as the stablefly and horn fly which will not normally enter a fly trap.

Tests have proven that when sprayed on hogs that raw patches within a week and no further injury to this nature was noticed throughout the balance of the season.

Indiscriminate vaccination will not stamp out brucellosis (Bang's disease). Systematic vaccination, testing and gradual elimination of proper sanitary measures, are the only way to control the disease which is now causing tremendous loss among dairy farmers.

Raw milk from all reactors, vaccinated or not, represents a degree of danger to man. Swine brucellosis is also on the increase.

Gets Sweet Revenge: Bass Hooks Angler

SPOKANE, WASH. — County Assessor Don H. Thompson was hooked by a fish.

Thompson related that he hooked a two-pound bass, and suddenly he found the situation reversed and the bass had him hooked. The fish bit his thumb, sinking the hook in so deeply that a doctor had to remove it.

Word was brought to Mrs. Dyer by reporters as she was visiting small home about eight miles from Tucson. The soldier, Capt. Victor S. Byrne, started the search by a message to the Wisconsin police asking assistance in locating the Dyer family.

Chief of Police Harry Mueller of Fort Atkinson, Wis., said he had received a telegram from Captain Byrne of Los Angeles asking the whereabouts of Mrs. Dyer, a former resident of Fort Atkinson. The telegram said:

"I am very ill and may not live many months. I wish to leave Mrs. Dyer my entire estate for her kindness toward me when I was a poor discharged soldier in Chicago. Now, I am a very wealthy man."

Mueller said that he had wired the information to Byrne and had received a reply thanking him and saying that the sender of the message planned to communicate with Mrs. Dyer soon.

Mrs. Dyer, wife of an electrician, filled in these details.

The friendship started in Chicago in 1923 when Captain Byrne, unemployed, met Mrs. Dyer and lived with the family "quite a while."

"He always acted like one of us," she said.

"For several months after he left, he kept in touch with the family by mail, but when he moved to his present residence in California, the contact was broken."

"This is the first news we have had of him since that time," the Dyers moved to Arizona in 1941.

Is Fixed at Four Days

CHICAGO. — The facial outlines that a four-day-old baby will have when he grows up can be predicted through X-ray studies of head growth at the University of Illinois college of dentistry.

The X-rays have shown that the main proportions of the skeletal framework of the human head and face present at birth remain virtually unchanged throughout life.

In fact, it is possible that after an examination of such X-rays an artist could draw a fairly reliable sketch of the face of the future citizen at the age of 21.

These studies of the head bones are made under the direction of Dr. Alan Brodie, dean of the college of dentistry and professor of orthodontia.

If the length of a four-year-old baby's nose is 45 per cent of the distance from bridge of nose to tip of chin, that nose length will still be 45 per cent at age 65 or at any other time.

The size of bumps on a head at birth remain in the same proportion throughout the life, as do the many contours and positions of all of the features that are fixed by bones.

To Lower Airline Fares

BALTIMORE, MD. — The Glenn L. Martin Aircraft company, for years almost exclusively a producer of larger type war planes, announced plans for mass production of a 30-passenger, twin-engine commercial ship which "promises passenger fares lower than first class rail rates."

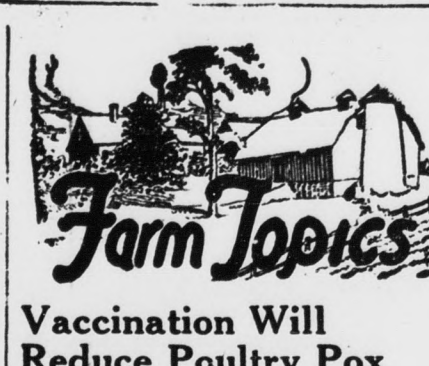

A full scale "mock-up" of the plane was inspected by newsmen, who were told the mass production would begin immediately after the initial demonstration flight of the first completed plane, required by the civil aeronautics administration.

The plane, designed for operations on main domestic trunk lines, is a speed of nearly 300 miles an hour. It is expected to be especially good for ranges of 250 to 700 miles, where larger four-engine transports cannot be operated economically.

March of Dimes Polio Funds Up to $16,589,874

NEW YORK. — Contributions to the 1945 March of Dimes of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis totaled $16,589,874, or more than 50 per cent above the 1944 total of $10,973,491, Basil O'Connor, president of the foundation, has announced.

O'Connor said that as of August 11, there were 3,558 cases of poliomyelitis throughout the country compared with 5,008 for a like period last year.

Pigs Fed Coal Give Good Growth Record

These pigs have been fed bituminous coal all their lives, without any apparent setback. It seems that the hogs like the mineral content. No evidence has been found that indicates the value of coal feed, although it has been practiced in some coal producing regions to some extent.

Most Thrilling Exploit of War Wins High Honor

Lone Tank Officer Repulses Tank Attack Led by 250 Germans.

WASHINGTON. — A young officer who manned a machine gun atop a blazing abandoned tank destroyer and bested a tank led assault by 250 Germans has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

He is First Lt. Audie L. Murphy, 21, of Farmerville, Texas, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor near Holtzheim, France, last January 26. He was still a second lieutenant and new to the command of his company in the third infantry division.

The citation accompanying the medal, which was to be given to Murphy in Europe, credited him with killing or wounding 50 of the Germans with machine gun fire and with directing artillery fire earlier in the fighting which killed "many" more. Some of Murphy's buddies estimated that he accounted for 100 Nazis in the four-hour battle.

Murphy was in front of his company when the Germans came. He ordered his men all back to prepared positions while he stayed at his advance post to call for artillery fire to smash the Germans in the open. He was alone except for a few yards to his right.

First Lt. Walter W. Weisfennig, an artillery officer at Fredonia, N. D., who witnessed the action, said later the artillery fire that Murphy directed "had a deadly effect."

"I saw Germans disappearing in clouds of dirt and snow," he related.

Then a German 88 mm. shell crashed into the tank destroyer and its crew bailed out, falling back to join the remainder of the company. Smoke and flames spurted from the tank. The German tank crew swung wide around it, fearing that its gasoline and ammunition would blow up.

With the German infantry only 100 yards away, Murphy dashed over the destroyer, climbed into the turret, and began blasting the Nazis with his 50 caliber machine gun. Weisfennig called it the "bravest thing I've ever seen a man do in combat."

Exposed to the fire, "He was completely exposed to the enemy fire and there was a blaze under him that threatened to blow the destroyer to bits. Machine gun, machine pistol, and 88 shellfire was all around him."

"Twice the tank destroyer was hit by direct shellfire and Lieutenant Murphy was engulfed in smoke and flame. His clothing was riddled by flying fragments of shells and bits of rocks. I saw that his trousers leg was soaked with blood."

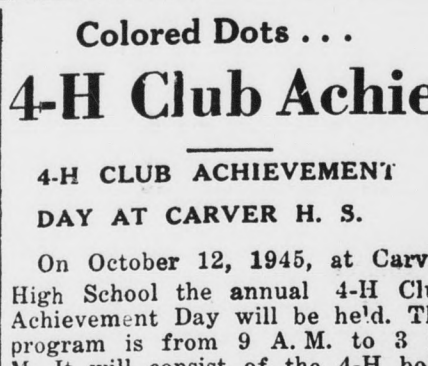

"Twelve Germans tried to sneak up along a ditch and tank him but he swung the machine gun and killed all of them at a 50-yard range. The Nazi infantry was stalled. Without the infantry the enemy tanks couldn't advance and the whole attack collapsed."

Murphy dropped wearily off the destroyer, all his ammunition gone, and limped back to his company. Refusing treatment, he recognized his company and led it in an attack that routed the Germans.

Murphy, a native of Farmerville, joined the army on his 18th birthday, and fought throughout the African, Sicilian, Italian and French campaigns. He has been wounded three times and wears the Purple Heart with two clusters.

United States U-Boats Sank 1,256 Jap Ships

WASHINGTON. — U-boat submarines operating in far Eastern waters in the last three months of the war sank 69 enemy vessels, the navy announced recently, bringing to 1,256 the number of Japanese ships sunk by American undersea craft in the war.

None of the sinkings in the last three months had been announced previously. The figures were compiled from reports of submarines after their return from Pacific action.

The latest bag included 20 Japanese warships and 49 noncombatant ships.

The warships sunk were two Japanese submarines, one mine-layer, two minesweepers, two large transporters, eight special subchasers, four coastal defense frigates, and one torpedo boat.

Jobs for All? Goal Seen In $150 Billion Income

WASHINGTON. — Treasury Secretary Vinson told congress that the national income of 150 billion dollars will be needed to provide jobs for all who are willing and able to work.

To assure employment for 60 million people, purchasing power must be increased enough to boost consumption 50 per cent and to expand production and investment 100 per cent over prewar levels, Vinson said in a statement for the senate banking committee.

Vinson endorsed the so-called "full employment" bill, which the committee is considering, but cautioned that "ultimate reliance for jobs must come from an expansion of private consumption and investments."

Enriched Tomatoes

Tomatoes with 10 times as much vitamin A value as is contained in varieties now on the market may be developed, according to Dr. F. P. Zachwie of the University of Chicago.

While rapid strides have been made in the development of varieties, Dr. Zachwie looks for considerable improvement in the post-war era, to such a point that tomatoes may be graded upon their vitamin content.
